PESTECH sees growth in solar, hydrogen fuel cells and battery storage systems. PESTECH (Cambodia) Plc Chairman Paul Lim. PESTECH (Cambodia) Plc says its interested in attracting investment from sustainable energy companies or even buying up firms in areas like hydrogen power and battery storage as the country moves away from fossil fuels.

Cambodia is planning a move towards solar and wind energy to meet its rising power demands, according to Minister of Mines and Energy Keo Rottanak. On the sidelines of the Singapore International Energy Week event held recently, Rottanak emphasised the urgency of diversifying Cambodia's energy sources.

This is primed to happen in Cambodia where high electricity prices and limited new energy supply makes them compelling. But as you note in points 4 & 5 the government and EDC actually hinder this. Actually behind the meter industrial applications are commercial projects that require very little support as such.

According to the Khmer Times, the approved projects include 12 solar projects, 6 wind projects, 1 biomass and solar combined project, 1 LNG power generation project, 1 hydropower project, and 2 energy storage stations.
