With its abundant sunshine, Libya has significant potential for solar energy projects that can meet domestic energy needs and open new avenues for export and job creation. Libya's energy transition is a crucial component of the strategy for sustainable development." The study programme was funded by the European Union.

Dr. Sophie Kemkhadze, UNDP Resident Representative in Libya, emphasized the program's alignment with Libya's broader strategic goals, stating: "While oil remains the backbone of Libya's economy, it is crucial to begin a gradual shift towards renewable energy sources such as solar and wind. With its abundant sunshine, Libya has significant ...

Solar radiation and sunshine duration are intimately related phenomena, which was used to study the equation related of average daily radiation to the extraterrestrial radiation for location and average fraction of possible sunshine hours. ... In general, the abundance of solar energy in Libya is evident from the annual daily average of global ...

and Libya is very rich in silicon. The solar energy in Libya can be measured by the solar radiation rate of 7.5 kW per day in the promising areas, which receives between 3000 and 3,500 hours of sunshine each year, which means that harnessing these possibilities will not pose any competitive problems in exploiting This is because the desert
